

Reflections on a global political ecology of climate change discourse and the context of local realities

Prof. Dr. Emily Boyd

University of Reading

Geography and Environmental Science

In this talk, I identify the major discourses associated with four climate change aspects: adaptation, resilience, risk and transformations. I design and conduct an examination of these discourses in terms of their meaning, story lines and guiding policy prescriptions. I then examine these four discourses in the context of the everyday realities of environmental change by communities at risk with examples from India, Bangladesh and Mozambique.

Date: Monday, 07.07.2014

Venue: South Asia Institute, Department of Geography, R 105

Time: 14:00