The new Branch Manager, Dr. Darshi Thoradeniya, completed her PhD in History of Medicine at the University of Warwick in May 2014. The title of her thesis is 'Women's Health as State Strategy: Sri Lanka's Twentieth Century'. She is interested in female embodiment, especially in relation to post-colonial projects of state building and nation building in Sri Lanka, as well as in population, family planning, women's health and the politics of development aid. Darshi is also a visiting lecturer for the certificate course on Social Harmony (which she designed in 2013) at the Open University of Sri Lanka.
