Since half a decade, Prophetic Medicine appears to be having a comeback among Muslim communities in India. Hijamah (a therapy present both in Unani and Prophetic Medicine) clinics are mushrooming in Muslim urban areas, and also more Unani practitioners claim to be practitioners of Prophetic Medicine. Through an examination of the practice of a hakim in Mumbai as well as of advertisements of Prophetic Medicine, this talk will discuss Muslim medicine in India by focusing on the revival of tibb-i nabavi and its link to Unani.
